This faithfully, school was opened as a charitable institution in January, 1870, and while receiving buys and girls whose parents can and do pay the full loss. the charitable principle has ever been kept in view, and I may say that for many years no real case of need has been refused admission, although great care has to be exercised to ascertain that each case is one of genuine necessity. When friends out pay a part of the cost they are expected to do so; when the child is atterly desti-tute he is received free. While the sum received in subscriptions has remained about the same, the charitable work has trebled in ten years, the deficiency being borne by the fees. It is most desirable that the Justitution should be placed on a self-supporting basis, but to do this, without diminishing the charitable work, it will be necessary to have a larger building, thereby saving the rent ($50 a month) of the other house, and providing additional achoolrooms, diningroom, lava; ories, &c., which have long been most urgently needed. We have land and the scholars, and only need the funds wherewith to build." Now I believe that this time last year, when General Cameron presided at the prize-giving in this school, he made a suggestion that a fund should be started, to be called the Diocesan Home Buil ling Fund, which would be altogether separate from the ordinary subscription fund to which people are asked to subscribe in this Colony overy year. Now we know that in a matter like this there is no use suggesting things unless you are prepared to give practical working effect to them; and I am happy to say that during the RACING STAKES; I miles. few hours I have had since receiving the particulars of this report I have started a fund to be called the Diocesan Home Building Fund, and that already a few names have been put down at $100 each. This will atany rate make a commencement. Another idea has also struck me. Seeing that the Amateur Dramatic Society of this Colony are always willing to support deserving charitable institutions such as this, I feel convinced that if the committee were to ask them to give a special performance of their very amusing pantomime for this object, they would do so; or at any rate if they could not see their way to The prises gained by the pupils of the giving a special performance they might perhaps ed be inclined to devote a portion of the proceed over and above expenses that they are likely to make with the pantomime. I am glad that Rev. Bishop Burdon, Rev. W. Jennings, Rev. a fund has been started, and I am sure that when the object becomes known many others will come forward and subscribe towards it. It is very satisfactory to know that the health of this school has been so good during the past year, seeing that sickness has been prevalent in the colony, and I think this speaks most highly for The year has been a very successful and prosperous the care and attention that must have been one. At present, as Mr. Piercy has said, we have to hire an additional house in order to take in some boarders, and if we had one of our own we should be saved that expense. I thank you very much, Sir, for commencing this fund, which I hope

THE JOCKEY CLUB AND THE PUBLIC. TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS." SIE, -Amongst the many who have been suf-

Bundles of reeds are laid on ropes made of the same reeds twisted, and let down into the water beginning at the shore where there is no depth. On these reeds mud and straw are heaped and as the structure runs out into the stream stout poles are bound to strong stakes thrust through it into the ground below These poles, which are afterwards removed, afford leverage for binding the whole together. As is well known, medical science is not in a very advanced state in China; but as in all countries, so here the people are familiar with many simples and simple remedies; notably acupunoture and counter-irritation, carried often to absurd extremes. Many a gaugrene and many a mass of corruption owe their existence to the use of the needle on an otherwise simple wound or boil. Counter-irritation is practised in many ways. A cup of burning wine is inverted on the forehead of a child suffering from convulsions. Sore eyes are frequently treated by putting plasters on the sides of the temples. Pinching is the commonest method, being the remedy specific to all the minor ills that Chinese flesh is heir to. Their methods are undoubtedly and wonderfully efficacions in their hands. Moreever, each man seems to contine himself to bis own particular description of river. For exemple, we have travelled with a captain on the Han who never flinched as he guided his leaky. eld craft through the boil of the ugly rapids. yet trembled as we rushed over the last few yards of the Han in a nest little hantzs and looked anxions as we crossed the Yangtze to Wuchaup Lake travelling differs from river travelling. If there is a head wind in the latter case we can still get on, though with preportionate difficulty. But in the lakes there is no tracking and if the wind is unfavourable we cannot move. So we remained three days at Licheng; the first day it rained, the second it blew and on the third was a dead calm. Several boatloads of refugees arrived at the anchorage on the same day as ourselves and during the terrific storm that raged in the second night the inevitable happeued: one of the wretched boats was torn from its moorings and wrecked.

These refugees are from Hauchou in the Kiangan province-a city on the S. bank of what used to be the Yellow River. "Their destination, they say, is Nanking, and they bring with them mountain produce, chestnuts, walnuts, etecters. But their merchandise cannot mean much to them; their boat, overgrowded with buman freight, could carry but a small store of these commodities, a large quantity of which would represent but a small turnover in cash.

These men do not appear to possess much in common with their fellow provincials from the south but approximate to the Shantangese rather than to the Nankingese. They are more open, sturdy, honest looking altogether more prepossessing than the riverine and mountain provincials. They call themselves refugees bungered people) and notwithstanding the nuts. the term probably describes them with a fair degree of accuracy. Whatever they may appear to their fellow countrymen, to a foreigner they have reached a depth of wretchedness impossible at home. Yet in all their hunger, cold, and nakedness they present a chcerfulness which makes it difficult to estimate their real condition. On the fourth morning we were off early and under a biting wind reached Chiangchu or, more popularly, Chiangchiap a busy market town on a little island in the Hungtsé Lake. A lively trade in fish and water fowl is carried on here, and all day long fishing and fowling boats keep arriving to discharge their cargoes under the inspection of the oustom-house officials-s tax of a few hundred cash per pioul is levied on the fish. The wild fowl, principally ducks. is shipped to Yangchew and Chinkiang; the fish is salted on the spot or sold fresh to the people on the mainland. The harbour is snug, running behind one of the extremities of the island; the outer bank of the sheltering promontory, having a stone facing to protect it during storms. The latter must be very large though hardly so extensive as the inhabitants of the village would have us believe. " Large" said one, a man of many winters, "yes, extends over thousands of li!" There we enjoyed another day's wait but pressed for a start on the second morning. Several boats left with or before us, but what with a dead calm, an opposing ourrent, and a soft bottom to the lake most of them returned, leaving us to pursue our course alone. The boatmen do not care to anchor alone, fearing the robbers, the lake, as they say, being "not clean" at any time but worse this year on account of the bad harvests which are complained of every, where We persevered however, and at nightfall reached the well sheltered harbour at Lactzeshun, a little place only important for the magnificent shelter it affords to the lake shipping. It has its name, we were told, from the fact that here the founder of the Taoists, succeeded in producing the "philip the 2,500 ticals which he had lost, 90 deliars of losopher's stone." "When P" I enquired. "()h, the money which his assistants had been count. when heaven and earth were made, in the time ing had disappeared. "Who under the charge of Dr. Willis .- Sidm Gasetts. invented your foreign letters P" one is often askad; "Confucius invented ours."

Next day we skirted along the S. W. shore of the lake and practically left it, anchoring. after a run of forty miles, at the mouth of the been obtained by Messrs. Roger & Gallet, or I iver Huai on whose waters we expect to continue our journey.

On this the Chinese Government and meh Contractors are to be equally congrat ated; and the Engineers deserve the highest credit, especially Mr. Griffon himself. When the work is quite complete it will be the proper time to give a somewhat detailed account of the transaction, comparing (1) the plane and estimates of Mr. Thevenet with those they supplanted; (2) the work as actually carried out with what was specified in the contract; and (3) the total amounts paid by the Chinese with Land & Buildingthe original contract price. It may also be desirable—since so much importance is attached to it—to supplement Mr. Griffon's account of the negotiation of the contract with some details not perhaps within his knowledge, and which will make the whole transaction clearer to his mind. But the question of how the contract was obtained really sinks into insignificance before the completion of this most important war port; on which the Chinese Government has sunk so much money, and which seemed at one time as if it would baffle all their efforts,

About 2 p.m. on the 24th ult. an ascident happened at the Chinese workshop between Captain Buthman's premises and those of the Bangkok Ironworks tompany. The steamer Rainbow was lying at the wharf with the view of getting a new boiler. The old boiler was being taken out by means of a crane, and had been swung clear out, when the men engaged in the operation left it hanging on the crane and went for tiffin. They came back in about an hour and a half and commenced hanling it in to the wharf, when the preventors, the strong wooden posts which bear the strain of the guys, were forced out of the ground and the boiler swung forward outside of the vessel and fell into the-river, the tackles used to pull in the boiler breaking at the same time: The crane fell across the forecastle of the steamer doing some damage to the ship. NOW ON SALE. IMPERIAL QUARTO. IDNGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY WITH THE PURTI AND MANUARIN

PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical services this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast concary of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vest margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast seeps of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration :required.

The Steamer has splendid Accommodation, should be marked to address in full; and the Chalmers' Vocabulary, contains about 16,009 and carries a Doctor and Stewardess.

Same will be received by us until 5 P.M. the Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely regaires examples to display the various appli-eations and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitheric pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English [165] to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. o parties resident in England and interested China it cannot but be invaluable occasion.

> It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages.
